About Florida Health Justice Project

Florida Health Justice Project is a statewide nonprofit organization dedicated to advancing health equity and justice for underserved communities throughout Florida. We provide direct legal assistance, community education, and policy reform initiatives toward ensuring that all Floridians have access to quality health coverage and care. Our work focuses on removing legal and systemic barriers that prevent vulnerable populations from accessing essential health services.

Position Overview

We are seeking self-motivated, curious law students who are passionate about health justice to join our team as interns for the summer. Their primary responsibility will be to conduct legal research regarding the Medicaid appeals process and make updates to our Medicaid Appeals Toolkit, which assists individuals and advocates in pursuing appeals of Medicaid denials and terminations. The Interns will also work on individual cases and participate in community outreach efforts as they arise.

Key Responsibilities

- Engage in review of existing Medicaid Appeals Toolkit and recommend format and content and changes
- Conduct legal research regarding the Medicaid Appeals process and update Toolkit as warranted
- Participate in client intake interviews, engage in oral and written communication with clients
- Conduct legal and factual research regarding client cases
- Work with attorneys and non-attorney advocates in providing direct legal assistance to clients
- Assist with community education workshops and presentations

Required Qualifications

- Full-time Florida resident - either presently or planned post-graduation

- Completed at least one year of law school, including at least one semester of a Legal Writing course
- Strong legal research and citation skills
- Excellent written and oral communication skills
- Proactive work ethic; identifies tasks needed and undertakes them with minimal direction
- Strong organizational skills and attention to detail
- Cultural competency and sensitivity when working with diverse populations
- Not required, but welcome: Florida Supreme Court approval as a Certified Legal Intern

What We Offer

- Clear expectations and supervision, with regular check-ins
- Opportunity to make a direct impact on health equity in Florida
- Collaborative, mission-driven work environment
- Fully remote position

Application Process

To apply, please submit your resume with a cover email with "Legal Intern Application" in the subject line to rodriguez@floridahealthjustice.org.

Equal Opportunity Employer

Florida Health Justice Project is an equal opportunity employer committed to workplace diversity. We welcome applications from candidates of all backgrounds and strongly encourage applications from individuals who are members of underrepresented communities, including people of color, LGBTQ+ individuals, people with disabilities, and those with lived experience with the healthcare challenges we address.

Applications will be accepted until the positions are filled.
